During the past week the Applications Central Library (ACL) software libraries became fully operational. The conversion of the Centralized Library System (CLS) PANVALET Library to the ACL production PANVALET Library was accomplished on schedule. All test modules that resided on the CLS PANVALET Library were moved to the ACL test PANVALET Library. This conversion brings all applications software under the configuration management control of the ACL. [redacted] (U)

In conjunction with the establishment of the ACL PANVALET Library as the production Library for development of software, the ACF rule set for G3C data sets was updated this week. The new rules allow programmers access to the PANVALET data sets. [redacted] (U)
